Shangri - La also known as Beyul, is a mythical place, and possibly another world who mixed with The Continent during The Conjuction of the Spheres, described in myths and texts from the Far East. Especially in places like the region of Feiwo.

Local legends and myths tell of a city, found in a valley in the mountains of the Feiwo region, more beautiful than any other. And it can only be found by those who are pure of heart. With an architecture that is similar to, but at the same time surpasses, that of the Aen Agde. Inhabited by very long-lived beings, humanoid in appearance but of different colours, known as Genasi. Masters of the elements, who are said to be descendants of genies, with other species, through misinterpreted wishes.

Once there, yes the seeker, it's pure, as mentioned above is offered asylum for a season, and then, if he/she accepts, they gave him/her a knowledge of the element he/she wants, greater than that which can be known in the place where he/she has studied.

This legend is very popular among local mages. And many of them have lost their way trying to find the city, especially once they reach the misty area known as the सेतो शून्य (The White Void).

Trivia

- Based on the city from the novel Lost Horizons and the Genasi monks from D&D.
